

The day of the next race started with glorious sunshine and the fleet reduced to great boredom waiting for some wind with Ian Pinnell capsized by fellow competitors who will remain anonymous. His crew was fighting mad, but Ian took it well and though no doubt losing his lunch and some tinnies and sunglasses, was relieved to find the racing was abandoned for the day and he could sort his boat out before the next day's race.

The 6th race was another difficult one for the Race Officer, but eventually the fleet started from a very port biased line. David Hall and Anthony Freer took advantage of the major shift in the first beat and went on to win, with Ian Pinnell second.

At the start of the last race Pinnell and Cripps led on points, but Hunt, also from U.K., and the two Australian teams of Dransfield and Delange could all have taken the Championship, and there were more in with a chance if all four leaders had disastrous races. In the event, the race was disaster for 57 boats who failed to reach the finish line, even though the race had been shortened. Ian Pinnell and Daniel Cripps managed a third place in difficult conditions, to take the title, their third major win in the year.
